1. Background Information

The modernisation of the Dutch legal immigration policy (“Modern Migratiebeleid”) entails a number of procedural changes, that will have an impact on our system of administrative fees. An overview of administrative fees for legal migrants in other Member States will help the decision-making process in the Netherlands. Policy makers and the Parliament are very interested in having a complete overview which allows a comparison between Member States. For this reason, we invite you to answer, as detailed as possible, the question here below.

			Could you give an overview of administrative fees (legal dues) imposed on third-country national migrants, applying for a residence permit in your country. If possible, we would like to receive this information subdivided into categories of family reunification, employed persons, highly skilled migrants (EMN Glossary 'Highly-Qualified), students, etc (see attachment for the Dutch categories) and including, if required, the cost for entry visas.
	Belgium	Yes	The 2 basic principles are that, firstly, according to the law of 14/03/1968 there can be no difference with the costs asked to Belgian and EU-citizens and secondly that the communes can decide to raise specific taxes for the communes interest (administration costs). In practice our electronic ID-cards cost 10 Euro; paper cards (only for EU-citizens) are free. Communal taxes vary from 0 to 15 Euro. A part from this we also have the "Attestation of Immatriculation" for non-EU-citizens whose stay on the territory can be temporary (i.e. asylum seekers and some categories of family reunification). These cards are only in paper and there is no maximum prize for it, but in reality communes ask (maximum) 10 to 15 Euro.
