1. Background Information

The UK Border Agency is currently reviewing our most recent available data on conclusion of asylum cases and removals. As part of this process, we would like to know what targets other Member States set, regarding the processing of asylum claims, and we would also like to know your most recent figures for removals. If possible, we would like to receive your responses by Monday 9th February 2009.

1. Does your Member State set any target timescales within which asylum cases should be concluded (i.e. either granted or removed)?

(a) If yes, what are these targets? And can you provide any statistical data relating to these targets?

(b) If no, do you have any other types of target for asylum claims (e.g. timescales within which initial decisions should be made)? And can you provide any statistical data relating to these targets?

2. Can you supply any data on the number of asylum applicants removed from your MS in 2007 and 2008?

	Belgium		The current target from the Belgian authorities is to handle the asylum files within 1 year after application (including suspensive appeals). This refers only to a positive or negative (final) asylum decision, but not to the possible effective removal (in case of negative decisions). Although no official data could be obtained, we assume that this goal is reached in the majority of the cases. Furthermore we refer to the answer of the BE ad hoc query of 30th April 2008 ("length of asylum applications").
	Bulgaria	Yes	According to the Law on Asylum and Refugees, Chapter six-PROCEEDINGS, within three days from the institution of the proceedings the interviewing body shall take a decision for: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. rejection of the application as manifestly unfounded; 2. termination of the proceedings; 3. institution of proceedings by the general order. If, within the period of three days, a decision is not taken, proceedings by the general order are initiated. Within two months from the institution of the proceedings by the general order the interviewing body works out a statement which, together with the personal file, is presented to the Chairman of State Agency for Refugees for decision. The Chairman of the State Agency for Refugees, in case of insufficiency of the gathered data for the concrete case can extend the period up to three months, whereas the foreigner is advised personally or by an acknowledged receipt notification.
	Germany	Yes	1.) a.) No legally binding targets for the general asylum procedure exist but there are voluntary objectives for the administrative proceedings. Thereafter 90% of the cases should be concluded within 12 and 50% within 3 months. The German figures regarding the duration of the proceedings refer to first and second/multiple applications and include also the time for the respective judicial proceedings. In 2007 43.7% cases were concluded within 6 months, 56.6 % within 12 and 66% within 18 months. These figures refer to negative or positive final decisions, but do not include the time for effecting removals. In case the procedure takes more than six months, the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees is hold to tell the applicant on request, until which time the case will presumably be decided.

			There is a codified target for the fast-track airport procedure. This procedure is, according to the ASYLUM PROCEDURE LAW, only applicable for asylum seekers from safe countries of origin or without valid passport or substitute. Including temporary legal protection proceedings, the timescale adds up to a maximum of 19 days. If the case cannot be decided in that short timescale, it will become subject to the general proceedings. b.) There are no target timescales for initial decisions.
	Estonia	Yes	Estonian Citizenship and Migration Board (CMB) hasn't set any target timescales within which asylum cases should be concluded. According to the Act on Granting International Protection to Aliens the CMB should make a decision concerning an application for asylum within six months as of submission of the application for asylum. This date can be extended if necessary. In the CMB the average duration of asylum procedure in 2008 was 2-3 months. The alien also has the right to file an appeal in the administrative court. The court, itself cannot decide whether to grant asylum or not, but can only agree with the decision made by the CMB or send it back to the CMB for review. There are altogether three levels of court. Unfortunately we don't keep the statistics for appeals procedure, but it can last quite long (a year or more).
	Spain	No	This EMN NCP has provided a response to the requesting EMN NCP. However, they have requested that their response is not disseminated further.
	France	Yes	1.a - The law does not set, in general, time limits for deciding on applications for asylum in France. However, in exceptional cases where the application is subject to a prioritized (asylum applications submitted by foreign nationals from countries considered safe, or whose presence poses a serious threat to public order or whose application is based on deliberate fraud or constitutes an abuse of asylum procedures ...), the specialized Agency (OFPRA) must decide within 15 days, reduced to 96 hours if an applicant is under administrative "detention". It is the application of Articles L.741-4, L.723-1 and R723-3 of the Code (CESEDA). In these cases an appeal to the appellate Court (CNDA) has no suspensive effect, and an expulsion may be taken by the administrative authority from the intervention of the negative decision OFPRA. 1.b - At the moment, the time taken to process asylum applications is about 100 days to OFPRA and 12 months for the CNDA. The objectives for 2009 are for 95 days OFPRA (and 85 days in 2011) and 8 months and 15 days for the CNDA, (6 months by 2011). Requests for asylum at the border are examined within 4 days on average. It is clear that the limitation of time taken to process asylum applications is a necessity (in order to quickly stabilize the situation of persons who are recognized as refugees, to avoid prolonging the maintenance of foreigners in France which are not intended to be granted asylum and to deter further arrivals of asylum seekers abuse ...). This objective, however, must be reconciled with the requirements of a quality treatment of the application and it is still very dependent on the flow of asylum applications by nature uncontrollable.
	Latvia	Yes	Yes. According to the Asylum Law the decision on asylum application (if case is examined under regular procedure) has to taken within three month of the day of submission of the application. The State Secretary of the Ministry of Interior may for substantiated reasons

			extend the time period for examination of an application up to twelve months. The special time limits are set up for accelerated procedure. If the asylum application is examined in the accelerated procedure the decision has to be taken within five working days. In all case during 2008 the particular time limits set up by the Asylum Law had been kept.
	Lithuania	Yes	The Law on the Legal Status of Aliens of the Republic of Lithuania sets a clear timeframe for the examination of asylum cases. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Within 48 hours from the lodging of the request for asylum, the decision on granting a temporary territorial asylum must be taken. This term can be extended by 24 hours in cases where the asylum applicant is returned to Lithuania from another EU Member State; - The whole asylum case must be examined and the decision must be taken (to grant the asylum or a subsidiary protection or not) within 3 months from the day of granting the temporary territorial asylum. Due to objective reasons, the term of the examination of the asylum case can be prolonged, but in all cases the examination of the case cannot last more than 6 months from the day of granting the temporary territorial asylum. These deadlines are always met. Only once in 2007 the examination of the asylum case, because of its difficulty, lasted more than 6 months (in 2007, 453 asylum cases were closed, 32 cases were dismissed).
	Hungary	Yes	According to the new Act LXXX of 2007 on Asylum which entered into force on 1st of January 2008, the asylum procedure is divided into two parts. The first part is called preliminary assessment procedure and shall be completed within fifteen days. This time limit shall not be extended. The second part is the in-merit procedure which shall be finished within sixty days from the adoption of the resolution ordering the in-merit procedure. It can be extended by thirty days once if it is justified. The asylum authority consequently follows the deadlines prescribed and assesses the asylum applications generally in two or two and a half month. A court review of a decision rejecting the application may be requested. The statement of claim shall be submitted to the asylum authority within fifteen days of the communication of the decision. The submission of the statement of claim shall have a suspensive effect on the execution of the decision of the refugee authority except when the same applicant submits an application after that two of his/her previous applications were finally and absolutely rejected or the procedures were discontinued and the prohibition of refoulement was not applicable. The court shall decide on the statement of claim in a litigious procedure within sixty days of the receipt of the statement of claim. In practice the judicial procedure lasts 12-18 months. Some rulings of the asylum authority are reviewed by the court in a non-litigious procedure. a) The ruling on the transfer of the applicant to the responsible Member State according to Dublin Regulation may be subject to judicial review. The petition for judicial review shall be submitted to the asylum authority within three days following the date of delivery of the ruling. The asylum authority shall forthwith forward the petition for judicial review to the competent court together with the documents of the case and any cross-complaint attached. The petition for judicial review shall be adjudged by the court within eight days following receipt of the petition for judicial review in non-litigious proceedings, relying on the available documents. 			interviews may not be conducted. The court's decision is final, and it may not be appealed. Pending judicial review, implementation of the ruling for transfer shall not be suspended upon receipt of a request therefor. b) The ruling adopted for the outright refusal of an application without any substantive investigation may be subject to judicial review. The petition for judicial review shall be submitted to the asylum authority within three days following the date of delivery of the ruling. The asylum authority shall forthwith forward the petition for judicial review to the competent court together with the documents of the case and any cross-complaint attached. Upon receipt of the petition for judicial review, enforcement of the ruling of the asylum authority shall be suspended. The petition for judicial review shall be adjudged by the court within eight days following receipt of the petition for judicial review in non-litigious proceedings, relying on the available documents. In the proceedings personal interviews may be conducted if deemed necessary. The court may alter the decision of the asylum authority. The court's decision is final, and it may not be appealed. These non-litigious court proceedings take 40-50 days in practice. If the obligation of non-refoulement does not apply, the asylum authority shall provide for - in its decision for the refusal of the application for recognition - the withdrawal of the alien's residence permit that was granted on humanitarian grounds, and shall order the person in question to exit the territory of the Republic of Hungary. The time limit prescribed for compliance with the obligation to leave the territory of the country shall be minimum ten and maximum thirty days. (An obligation to leave the territory of the Republic of Hungary shall not be imposed in some exceptional cases.) We have no statistical data on the real time-limit of fulfilling the obligation to leave the territory of the country.
	Netherlands	Yes	The initial assessment of application for asylum takes place in an application centre. This initial assessment has to take place within 48 hours (which adds up to 3 to 5 working days). After the initial assessment a detailed interview follows. This detailed interview should take place within 3 to 5 working days. After this second phase, an application can be denied or granted. If further investigation is needed, this has to be finished within 6 months.
	Austria	No	This EMN NCP has provided a response to the requesting EMN NCP. However, they have requested that their response is not disseminated further.
	Poland		No such targets were set up in Poland, however there are time limits specified for the asylum procedures: a) Statutorily (Act on granting protection to foreigners on the territory of the Republic of Poland of 13 June 2003), the decision (I instance – Head of the Office for Foreigners) in refugee cases should be issued within 6 months from the day when the application was submitted. In cases of manifestly unfounded applications, the decision should be issued within 30 days from the day when the application was submitted. The I instance decision can be appealed against to the Council on Refugees (II instance) – according to the Code for Administrative Procedures, the Council has 30 days to examine the appeal and issue the decision. Council's decision can be complained on to Voivodeship and then to Supreme Administrative Courts. Again, according to the Code for Administrative Procedures, the Courts have each 30 days to examine the complaint and issue the decision.

			b) There are no statistics available on this subject.
	Portugal	Yes	No, Portugal doesn't have such a model. 1.b) The time frames for completing an examination of an asylum application at first instance in accordance with Portuguese national legislation are: The decision of the director's of the Portuguese Immigration Service has to be pronounced on the inadmissibility or admissibility of the application within twenty days from the closing date of the notification on the report on the statements of the asylum applicant. Then the fact-finding process shall take place within 60 days, extendable for an equivalent period, until the limit of 180 days, whenever necessary.
	Slovenia	Yes	Slovene International Protection Law determines that a competent first instance authority decides the case in the procedure within the shortest possible time unless this would affect an adequate and complete examination. If the competent authority cannot take a decision within six months, the applicant concerned shall be informed of the delay in writing and shall receive an information on the time-frame within which the decision on his/her application is to be expected. The Administrative Court shall decide upon the action against the decision taken in a regular procedure within 30 days after receiving it, or within 7 days if the decision has been taken in an accelerated procedure. The Supreme Court shall decide upon the appeal within fifteen days after the receipt of the appeal. Arising from these provisions our aim is to decide the case (i.e. final decision - granted or removed) within 6 months (instructive time limit). This time limit is met in accelerated procedures, but it is not always met in regular procedures. Further we would like to explain that the competent body does not keep the statistics on the average duration of the procedures for granting the international protection in our country.
	Slovak Republic	No	This EMN NCP has provided a response to the requesting EMN NCP. However, they have requested that their response is not disseminated further.
	Finland		Yes. Finland has set targets for average processing times for the different types of asylum cases. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1(a) In 2008 the objective for the normal procedure was set at less than 210 days (realized 176 days), accelerated procedure: less than 90 days (realized 57 days), Dublin-procedure: less than 35 days (realized 50 days), manifestly unfounded applications: less than 90 days (realized 90 days). The average processing time of all the asylum applications was 127 days in 2008. The objective for unaccompanied minors was set at 90 days without tracking and 180 with tracking (realized 115 days, no figure for how many tracking cases available). • 1(b) No other published targets.

	Sweden	Yes	(a) In Sweden there is no set target timescale within which an asylum seeker should be removed or take up residence. There is however a target which states that the time spent in the process should be shorter in 2009 than 2008. The mean time for 2008 was 409 days. (b) There are targets set for when decisions should be made. For the Migration Board (i.e. the initial decision) the target is six months from application to decision. The Migration court has a target of four months in median and the Migration court of appeal a target of two months in median. In 2008 31 % of the applications received by the Migration Board was concluded within six months, the mean time was 267 days. The median time for cases tried at the Migration court during 2008 was 4.4 months and for the Migration court of appeal 1.6 months.
	United Kingdom	Yes	Yes. The UK's Asylum Conclusion Target requires that a certain percentage of new asylum claimants will be granted or removed within 6 months. 1(a) In December 2007, the Asylum Conclusion Target was set at 40% (i.e. 40% of new asylum claimants received in June 2007 would be granted or removed within six months). This target rose to 60% for June 2008. Our most recent published data is for December 2007: By the end of December 2007, 46% of new applications received in June 2007 were concluded within six months. 1(b) The UK has no other published targets at the moment, although in the past we have set targeted timescales within which initial decisions should be made.

		Wider Dissemination?	Can you supply any data on the number of asylum applicants removed from your MS in 2007 and 2008?
	Belgium		No. See above.
	Bulgaria	Yes	No. The Migration Directorate within the Ministry of Interior is responsible for the removal of third country nationals with imposed compulsory administrative measures. At present the statistical data for the executed removals do not include information whether the alien removed has unsuccessfully applied for asylum. Neither the State Agency for Refugees collects data about the removals of the asylum seekers that have been rejected.
	Germany	Yes	There are no specific figures for the removals after the asylum procedure available because the corresponding statistics of the Border Police don't refer to specific reasons for a removal.
	Estonia	Yes	2007- 2 asylum applicants were removed. 2008- 3 asylum applicants were removed.

	France		The number of applicants for asylum in 2007 was 35 520 (accompanying minors included). There is a slight increase in 2008. For 2008, this number is estimated to be 36 000 (provisional figure). Asylum seekers who are denied refugee status or subsidiary protection must leave French territory. If they do not leave the French territory, they may be subject to expulsion. But it is estimated that a high proportion of rejected asylum seekers remains in the French territory. This proportion and the proportion of rejected asylum seekers among illegal aliens, however, are not quantifiable.
	Latvia		In 2007, 4 asylum applicants were removed and 4 asylum applicants left country with return decision. In 2008, 5 asylum applicants were removed and 6 asylum applicants left country with return decision.
	Lithuania		In 2007, 21 asylum applicants were removed from Lithuania, in 2008 – 18.
	Hungary	Yes	Before 1st of January 2008 (the entering into force of the new Asylum Act) lodging of a subsequent application for recognition had a suspensive effect on the execution of removal. At that time most of the applicants submitted subsequent applications, therefore in 2007 there wasn't any asylum applicant who was removed from Hungary. Those asylum applicants whose applications were rejected by a final decision and who wanted to return to their country of origin, returned voluntarily by the assistance of IOM and the Office of Immigration and Nationality. From 1st of January 2008 the new Asylum Act stipulates that if the same applicant has submitted an application after having two previous applications refused or dismissed by final decision, and the asylum authority did not apply the obligation of non-refoulement, implementation shall not be suspended upon receipt of the application pertaining to expulsion of the applicant or pertaining to the applicant's obligation to leave the country. In 2008 21 rejected asylum applicants were removed by air.

	Portugal		Data are not available on the number of asylum applicants removed from Portuguese territory.
	Slovenia		In 2007 a competent body issued 276 meritory negative decisions and 291 other non – status decisions (decisions not on the merits, such as withdrawal of applications). In 2008 a competent body issued 145 negative decisions and 163 other non – status decisions (such as withdrawal of applications). All these applicants have to leave Slovenia immediately after the decision has become final. The person accommodated in Asylum Home or its branch shall be transferred to the custody of the police when the decision of the competent authority is enforceable, or after the decision becomes final. However, we don't have the number of the persons actually removed.
